

Love and Money

Laverne Robinson

People don't want anybody whose broke, man or woman, because they can't provide anything for the relationship or the household. Two people who are broke may fall in love, but they can't go anywhere without money. You need a car in a relationship because if you want to stay out late the bus doesn't run late at night. And the cost of living is expensive.

Sometimes people want people for the wrong reasons. They want people for their money and they're called a gold-digger and a player. You have to be with someone who treats you right and doesn't have an attitude problem. I know people who can pay their bills and are still mad. I'm glad I wasn't raised like that.

6-16-06