

5/02/06

Creative Writing

How much should a gallon of gas be worth?

One thousand lives. 5 thousand. Maybe even ten thousand. I of course am speaking of the Iraqi war. After all isn't that why we are there. We are there because of oil. I have heard no mention of weapons of mass destruction found. We are still there and it seems we are going to be in Iraq for a while longer.

Is it worth it? Gas has steadily risen since we have invaded Iraq. Not to mention the death toll that rises weekly if not daily.

I really don't think that those that have lost loved ones or those maimed by roadside bombs would think that it was worth it. What do you think?

Willie Williams